For Contributions:

Every submission to AKSU Journal of English should comply with the MLA Reference Style for literature and APA Reference Style for language-oriented works. Articles should not exceed 4000-4500 words, including references, with an abstract of 150-200 words. Articles that fail to be consistent with the appropriate style sheet may not be considered for publication.

Our review process adopts 'blind' approach and therefore anonymous. Contributors need not disclose their identities in the body of their articles but should indicate their names, designations, institutional affiliations and contact addresses with the titles of their papers in a separate, detachable cover page.

Articles and research findings should be attached electronically with MS Word format and mailed to: The Chief Editor, AKSU Journal of English, Department of English, Akwa Ibom State University, Obio Akpa Campus, Akwa Ibom State, Nigeria. E-mail:aksujel@gmail.com.

EDITORIAL NOTE

It is gladdening to announce the maiden edition of the AKSU Journal of English! It is no mean feat assembling high quality research papers from the whole lot of submissions into what comes out as the maiden edition of this journal. The idea of this journal came to fruition during the Headship of Professor David Eka, now Dean of Arts, who set up the editorial team and approved the appointments of the Editorial Consultants to the journal. The task finally got accomplished during the Headship of Dr. Vero-Ekpris Uruzjian, the present Head of English.

AKSU Journal of English is envisioned to provide a platform for cross-fertilisation of knowledge through interdisciplinary enquiry into theoretical and practical approaches to language, literature and culture. This edition sets the wheel in motion, and with the existing team of editors, and editorial advisors drawn from seasoned academics and scholars, there is no doubt that AKSU Journal of English is fully set on the right pedestal to perform with optimal efficiency.

We appreciate your support and patronage.
